2007 and Growing Again

AUSTIN, Texas – February 5, 2007 – Legiant, a cutting edge leader of development in the web-based time & attendance tracking industry, is pleased to announce the addition of eight new people to their teams in training, sales, implementation and administration.

Walter Ross, CEO of Legiant, addresses the large addition to the staff by stating, “As a company committed to exponential growth and customer service we felt it important that we keep our staffing levels at a point where we can continue to provide timely and thorough customer service.”

Christie Hays joins the Legiant team as a Training Specialist. She brings management and training expertise from her most recent role in media college admissions.

The Sales department added two new Account Managers, Jennifer Larson and Robert Proden. Jennifer’s background encompasses many years of software and hardware sales with a focus on Federal accounts. Robert rounds out the department with over 20 years experience in business, sales and marketing.

On the Support side, two new Implementation Managers join the team. Frank Alexander spent the last 15 years in conversions of accounting systems. He specialized in the design, training and implementation of custom solutions. A native New Yorker, Ryan Norman now calls Austin home and counts among his varied job experiences a background in implementation of Windows based time and attendance systems, accounting packages and inventory package type software programs.

The Administrative team grew by three new staffers, Mary Poche’ as Director of Marketing, Belinda Bowen as the Accounting Manager, and Layne Smith as the Administrative Assistant. Ms. Poche’ brings almost 25 years experience in marketing, events and general management in for profit and not for profit businesses having most recently been the General Manger/Marketing Manager for an international dental architecture and design firm. Prior to joining Legiant, Ms. Bowen was the Controller for Strategic Partnerships and has a broad management background in the technology sector. Ms. Smith is working toward a communications degree and her last position was as an administrative assistant for a local Austin business.
